25X1 3. Opinion was divided; some of the Communist leaders advocated support of the 25X1 Yugoslav claim, others (including Otto Fischer and the delegates from Styria and Carinthia) rejected it.

3. Finally, CP Secretary-General Fuernkrans suggested a compromise, whereby outwardly the CP would reject the Yugoslav claim but would simultaneously inform Tito that this decision was prompted by internal political considerations only, and that should the Communists obtain power they would always be willing to revise their attitude. This compromise was adopted.
